

University College

Student who graduate with a baccalaureate degree in General Studies should be able to:

1. Design a project within an academic discipline based on project needs, goals, and objectives;
2. Organize project workflow to achieve goals and objectives in a timely manner;
3. Create original project content based on literature review, experimentation, and original research to address project goals and objectives;
4. Communicate outcomes in written format sufficient to relate important results and findings of the project; and
5. Sufficiently describe all aspects of the project to diverse audiences allowing for evaluation of project outcomes relative to project goals and objectives.