

Dr. Steve Lochmann is a Professor of Fisheries Management and Fish Ecology. He teaches graduate classes in both subjects, as well as a graduate seminar in Scientific Presentations. His current research includes work on chemical methods of marking fish, stock enhancement of sport fish, competition between native and introduced species, and status, distribution, and culture of species of conservation concern.

+ Office Hours M, W, F 8:30am-10:30am or by appointment

+ Class Schedule

GAQF 5371 Graduate Fisheries Management T,Th 9:30am-10:45am Holiday Hall Room 105C

GAQF 51xx Graduate Seminar – Scientific Presentations T 12:30 – 1:20 pm Woodard Hall Rm 257

+ Current Research Project(s)

Techniques to Improve Calcein Marking of Fish

Distribution and Abundance of the Strawberry darter (Etheostoma fragi) in the Main Stem and Tributaries of the Strawberry River

Assessing Arkansas Game and Fish Commission Crappie Stock Enhancement

Population Characteristics, Diet and Movement of Northern Snakeheads