Parental Access to Student Records

UAPB student's education record is considered confidential under federal law; this law is called the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). UAPB will not disclose education records without prior consent. Students do have the right and ability to grant access for a third party (parents, guardians) to view academic records. This may include grades, tuition statements, attendance, transcripts, etc. The student must complete and sign the Parent Authorization form. This form will allow students to specify the records to be disclosed and the identity of the person to whom the records will be disclosed. Our hope is that even though students have the right to decide who can inspect or review their records, students will begin the conversation about sharing this information with those who need to know.
